A look back:

Longtimer reminisces

Partly in anticipation of tonight's grand opening of a major new city bridge, longtime resident Lou Arges (proprietor of Pipe King pipe sales in West Sacramento) offered to pen some of his thoughts on the history of the region. The News-Ledger thought you'd appreciate his perspective, so here it is:

By Lou Arges

I have lived in West Sacramento for a long time. Before we moved from Sacramento my father grazed bands of sheep in the West Sacramento area. He lambed the Ewes from the locks to the river where huge barns existed. This many years before the port was built all the traffic went down Park Blvd. towards Clarksburg. Many remember the thousands of sheep grazing where Cal Expo is today along the American River clear up to Arden Way. At one time we raised ten thousand head of sheep. I and my brother Phill leased the Port of Sacramento and decided to become farmers. We purchased an old International TD14 track layer and a small wheel tractor and began farming barley and wheat on the port. Without warning the port needed to dredge the channel. We would lose 500 acres of our crop in two days.

In the early days we would drive two thousand head across the I Street bridge in Broderick over to Front St. and down K Street to the Alhambra theater over to H Street and all the way to Orangevale on Hazel Ave. all in one day. We would close the Yolo causeway for two hours and end up at Mace Blvd. where we would summer the sheep. Then in the fall we would repeat the journey back to West Sacramento. Needless to say there were many irate motorists.

In my many years of farming in the area I saw this area change dramatically to what it is today. Many of the people who read this don't know of all the great farmers of this area who have made it what it is today. As I remember back I hope to remember all of the people who were and still are the greatest farmers in Sacramento.

YOU MIGHT NOT GUESS IT, but this site in West Sacramento has been in the news a lot lately. This photo, taken in the late 1930s, shows Tony, Luis and Manuel Silva on the Silva Dairy -- what is currently the site of city hall. The fence probably lines Stone Blvd., and the background of the photo shows an area which will be the center of attention in West Sacramento tonight: the site of the new Daniel C. Palamidessi Bridge, due to be opened with great fanfare and fireworks.

The Parellas, Constantino, his sons Charlie and Louie who raised rice from Washington lake all the way to the Yolo Bypass. Chuck Jr. remembers when movie actors John Wayne, Ward Bond, and Terry Wilson from the old Wagon Train series, all came over for a good duck hunt. There were thousands of geese and ducks in the field. Obviously it didn't take very long before they all were to bag their limits, and then some?

Bruno Rapetti, a great farmer who specialized in seed farming.

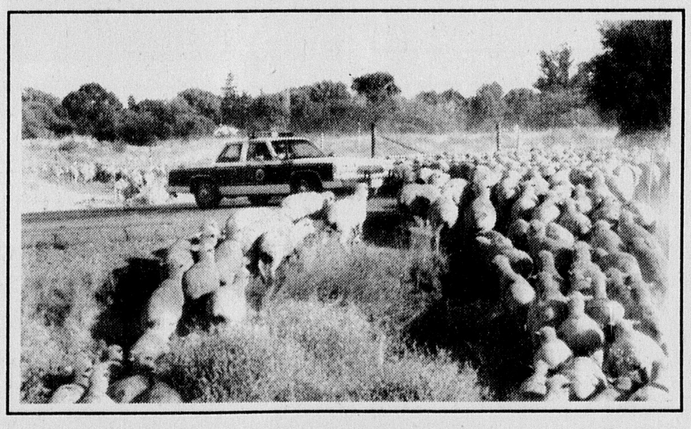

King Sarmento, another pioneer managed to farm with perfection. He could duplicate any piece of farm equipment and when he was finished could make it better than the original. His son Steve continues in his father's footsteps.

Manuel Silva owned a dairy in the area where the city hall now stands all the way to Jefferson Blvd. with help from his sons Frank, Joe and Ed. They relinquished their land and dairy to accommodate the Yolo Port. The Silva's moved the dairy and farm to the Natomas area until retiring and are now

Man arrested after 4th St. homicide

By Steve Marschke

A man was killed and a suspect arrested following a shooting Monday at about 7:25 p.m. at 324 4th St. in West Sacramento.

West Sacramento police reported that they responded to a call on the shooting and found a black male adult at an apartment at that location with a gunshot wound to his right side.

The victim, whose name was not released pending notification of his kin, was taken by ambulance to the UCD Medical Center, where he was reported dead.

Police pursued a suspect to the nearby riverfront adjacent to the Tower Bridge. Jermaine Antonio Owens, 25, was apprehended at gunpoint. According to police records, he attempted to flee into the river, and units from both the Sacramento and West Sacramento police departments responded in pursuit.

Two witnesses identified Owens as the suspect in a field lineup near the river.

Owens was booked for murder. According to the arrest report, he is a known gang member and was on parole at the time of the incident. He told police he was homeless.

Fireworks, civic hoopla in store for bridge dedication

Today, West Sacramento celebrates the completion of the new $15 million Daniel C. Palamidessi Bridge.

It will be officially dedicated during ceremonies outside City Hall, 2101 Stone Blvd., beginning at 7 p.m. Rep. Vic Fazio is among the dignitaries scheduled to appear. Rep. Fazio was instrumental in obtaining major federal funding for the bridge. Following the introduction of local officials at 7:30 p.m., events shift to the north entrance of the bridge, adjacent to City Hall, to cut the ribbon, opening the bridge to pedestrians. At 9 p.m., looking west from the 540-foot long bridge, the public can watch spectacular fireworks light up the night. The bridge opens to vehicle traffic at noon tomorrow, July 3 -- one year following the date of the groundbreaking.

Free parking for the event will be available along Industrial Blvd., north of the barge canal, with access by way of Harbor Blvd. This recommended parking area provides easy access to the ceremonies dedicating the bridge, as well as the concessions area in the City Hall parking lot. Parking will also be provided south of the barge canal on the new bridge access road off Jefferson Blvd., across from Club Pheasant. However, this parking area will not provide pedestrian access across the bridge until after the ribbon-cutting, approximately at 8:45 p.m. The area will still provide excellent views of the fireworks.

Refreshments will be on sale during the event including hot dogs, popcorn, soft drinks and beer.

Who pays for the bridge

By Sandy Larson

The Daniel C. Palamidessi Bridge, which celebrates a grand opening tonight and opens to traffic tomorrow at noon, will cost a total of $18.05 million, according to West Sacramento city finance director Leigh Keicher.

The largest share of that tab, $8.3 million, was provided by a federal grant. Other contributors were the Southport Industrial Park (through Community Facilities District No. 3), with $4.29 million; the Gainsborough and Gateway planned subdivisions in Southport (Community Facilities District No. 4), $373,000 and $200,000, respectively; the Port of Sacramento (a public entity), $2.14 million; the State-Local Transportation Partnership, $300,000; and traffic impact fees from new construction in West Sacramento, $700,000.

The City of West Sacramento advanced the remaining $1.747 million, to be repaid from projected tax revenues from new construction in Southport.

New program gives info on sex offenders

■ West Sacramento residents may visit the sheriff's department to find out if their families are exposed to any of the state's registered sex offenders

By Steve Marschke

The so-called "Megan's List," a computer CD-ROM storage database of registered sex offenders, became available to members of the public yesterday.

In Yolo County, residents may contact the Yolo County Sheriff's Department at 668-5245 to learn how to view the database and find out if they -- or their families -- are exposed to any of the state's registered sex offenders who could be living nearby.

"Every single county has to maintain these files," said Larry Gore, West Sacramento's police chief. "Cities larger than 200,000 also must maintain them for the public. With cities smaller than 200,000, such as West Sacramento, it is optional. At the moment, because it requires computer equipment we don't have, we will refer (the public) to the county."

County officials couldn't immediately be reached for information on how the program would be implemented. But a West Sacramento police department spokesperson explained that anyone interested in finding out if a registered sex offender lives nearby may visit the sheriff's department, fill out some paperwork, and enter a neighbor's name to check if he (or she) is a registered sex offender.

A resident could also check the block he or she lives on to find out if a sex offender is a neighbor.

Before using the database, you must sign a form stating you are over 18, provide your name and some form of identification, give your address, state that you are not yourself a registered offender, and agree not to copy or distribute information from the list or use the information for unlawful reasons -- such as to harass one of the registered offenders on the list.

Public's efforts helping

By Steve Marschke

Since the News-Ledger began working with the state parole department in April, publishing pictures and information on four different parolees wanted and on the loose every week, 16 of those parolees have been apprehended, and virtually all are behind bars for their new transgressions.

So says Greg Potnick, the agent in charge for the parole department's bureaus in Yolo and Colusa counties.

Potnick is also a West Sacramento resident and member of the local city council.

"We're extremely pleased with the public's response," he said.

living in West Sacramento.

There was another large dairy operation belonged to Frank Mattos, and his sons Clarence and Bill, on the land known as Caldonia farms.

Shimada Brothers, Harry Nishimura, Emil Drovin, Nathan Iwasaki, and Andy Yokohama all are very respectable farmers in the community. Ellard and Alroy Vierra, whose family members John, Andy, Richard and his son David all continue in agriculture.

North of the Port was the Tony Bento Farms. Martin Deanda, a well known rancher, raised ten children on his small ranch.

Across the tracks on Harbor Blvd. were the Rose Orchards where many of us picked pears for extra spending money. The elder Mr. Columbani, baseball player Steve Saks great grandfather, ran the orchard.

Bondholders, Alaska Packers and the Del Monte Corp owned most of the southport area.

Joe Valine Sr., his son Laurence our former fire chief, and Jim who many remember ran Kelley's Drive-in, now the home of the Elks Lodge, and it was the place to go. Joe Jr. farmed till just a few years ago. The Valines used horses to pull the machinery, to mow, and push their hay up to the stationery bailers. This was way before portable bailers that you see today. A lot has changed in the last fifty years. The Vierras use bank out wagons to pick up hay and stack it. And the truckers now have a squeeze the picks up these stacks to load the trucks without the use of any hand labor.

I can remember when sugar beets had to be hand topped with machetes and thrown into the trucks by hand. Most all of the fruits and vegetables had to be hand picked. Whereas, today we have machines to pick them and thus giving us more affordable food products.

Another well known farmer was Albert Rodgers Sr. who left a legacy to his three sons Buck, Mike and Scott. Mike moved to Montana and runs a hunting lodge. Buck and Scott still do extensive farming in our area.

Let us not forget the old patriarch George Palamadessi who took great pride in his alfalfa fields and his son Peter who continued in farming on the land known to us as touchstone which they owned a long with the landmark property across the street the Club Pheasant. Sons Pete Jr., Paul, Perry and daughter Patty now serve great garlic steak sandwiches and raviolis, a legacy from Momma. The City of West Sacramento has named our new bridge in memory of Daniel C. Palamadessi.

The late Arthur Turner had the task of leasing land to most of the prior named farmers. Many of them later were able to purchase the land they were farming. Arthur Turner later formed his own Real Estate Co. called The West Sacramento Land Co. located at Jefferson Blvd. and Merkley. His son Howard Jr. and grandson Bryan now operate it. The Turner library was named in his honor.

The Ramos Brothers, Frank and Bill supplied most of the farmers here with their fuels and oils. Many times by hand pumping the fuel into the farmer's tanks. Both are involved in the agricultural scene today, as both worked on the farm in their youth.

Many of you that live in Bryte and Broderick all the way to the deep water channel need only look at the land your home is built on. Most of the soil is sandy loam. This was high ground. Before levees and bypasses were constructed the Sacramento and American rivers ran wild through those parts. Silt would deposit and eventually formed the high ground. To cross the Sacramento River, you would have to take barges or a ferry. The land in southport west of the rail road tracks and Jefferson Blvd. were known as swamplands and many of the deeds still read that way. I remember someone in Linden Acres had a swimming pool installed at ten feet below the surface the workmen came across old redwood posts and barbed wire.

It's hard to imagine before levees, how people traveled to Davis, Woodland, and on to the Bay area. The levees were built by horse drawn scrapers and steam construction equipment. Presently the plan is to raise the levees and strengthen them on the Yolo bypass bordering West Sacramento to the Sacramento Weir. This will give us a 400-year flood status.

I have had the privilege to know most of the farmers I mentioned or heard of them, as my father grazed several large bands of sheep in the West Sacramento area. Through the alfalfa, sugar beet, and barley fields we would grace our sheep fattening our lambs for our slaughter house located on florin rd. across from the florin mall. At that time there was nothing out there but a few farms and large open fields.

I hope I have enlightened your readers with some of the history of our area, and hope that I haven't left any of the farmers I knew out.

I still "try" to farm a little. My son Demetre loves to get on the tractor and disc the fields with the radio blaring and the air conditioner full blast. Only a few of us have had the experience of planting a crop and watching it grow. Knowing that you were responsible for it to grow to maturity. It gives you a lot of satisfaction, especially when you get a good crop.

I just hope we have the land and water for the future to continue to save our farmlands for our children and future generations.

My thanks to the real farmers past and present.

Cebrian Street – Del Monte Street Rehabilitation Project

Improvements of Cebrian Street and a portion of Del Monte Street between Stone Boulevard and the Union Pacific Railroad tracks near Terminal Street are scheduled to begin construction in early July 1997. This project involves reconstruction of pavement structural sections, asphalt concrete overlay, curb, gutter and driveway replacement, signing, striping and other related improvements. Project completion is anticipated in October 1997.

The City of West Sacramento will be working in partnership with the contractor, R. C. Collet, Inc. to minimize any inconvenience to the public during construction. Access to both streets and driveways will be maintained at all times. During the heaviest construction operations, traffic control with flaggers will be used at locations where only one lane is open for alternating one-way traffic. If you would like further information please call Lenard LaChappell, Engineering Construction Manager at 373-5850.

There was a great deal of sports excitement this past week.

In baseball, the Giants continue to hold on to a piece of first place, and in the boxing world, heavyweight Evander "The Real Deal" Holyfield was more like the "Real Meal." Mike "Iron Bite" Tyson turned the Fight of the Year into the "Fight of the Ear."

Tyson stunned the world with a third round disqualification for biting Holyfield's ears. Tyson bit him once in the right ear and after a two-point deduction by referee Miles Lane, Tyson scored another lobe-blow and bit his left ear.

I could not believe my eyes. Tyson spit out his mouth protector and turned into Hannibal Lecter.

This bout broke a cable record for Pay-for-View with 1.8 million viewers paying an estimated $90 million. The previous record was 1.6 million for the first Tyson-Holyfield fight on Nov. 9. Tyson held a press conference Monday and apologized to the world, his family, and the Nevada State Athletic Commission, and to his probation officer. He did tell Evander, "I am sorry."

Look for the Commission to bend Tyson's ear and fine Mike ten percent ($3 million) of his purse ($30 million), suspend him from boxing for at least two years, and send him to a doctor for some serious psychiatric treatment.

Speaking of boxing, promoter Don Chargin will have a 12-round championship bout on

A law for public safety

It is now easier than ever to find out if your neighbor is a registered sex offender legally living in your neighborhood after having served his sentence.

This is a controversial thing, but more good will come out of it than bad.

The "good" side is obvious. If you know that someone in your neighborhood has been, in the past, a dangerous person, you can better take steps to prevent from becoming a future victim. And you can better take steps to keep your children safe.

The "bad" part of this law is its potential for abuse. Will some people, once they learn about a neighbor who is a registered sex offender, conspire to torment that person and drive him out of the area? Or worse? Even if that person has, for the past 20 or 30 years, successfully endeavored to live in peace and in compliance with the law?

The idea is that once a person pays his debt to our society, he deserves every chance to live life back inside society in a lawful manner. If we harass these people from community to community, we will prevent this chance.

We will also cause a lot of stress to our own probation and parole systems, which depend on being able to place these ex-criminals back in the "real world" after they have done their allotted time.

So, rightly, under the new law it will be a criminal offense to misuse any knowledge about the location of a registered sex offender.

Critics of the law, including one heard on a major radio station yesterday, call the new public information process on sex offenders a modern day "scarlet letter" program.

They refer to the classic Nathaniel Hawthorne story in which an adultress in a Puritan community is sentenced to forever wear a red letter "A" on her bosom, publicizing her own "crime" wherever she goes.

But the new law is no such thing.

Registered sex offenders are not the modern day equivalent of Hawthorne's heroine. A sex offender is someone convicted of victimizing someone else -- often a child. A registered sex offender stands a relatively high possibility of continuing to be dangerous.

Also, these offenders are not being branded with a reminder of their crime, as the fictional character was.

They can still move about their community. The difference is neighbors can now find out who they are and if they live on the same block.

That's a pretty good balance of the rights of the community and the rights of those troubled souls who have earned themselves the necessity of registering as sex offenders.

No doubt the law will someday need fine-tuning. But this is a good start.

Teen center is a good sign for city

By Don Bosley
West Sacramento

The more you study West Sacramento's development as a city, the more you marvel at the way that one bridge leads to another.

Here on the eve of the Daniel C. Palamadessi bridge unveiling, West Sacramento is also making an unprecedented effort to bridge a gap to its teenage population. The global youth organization Campus Life last week accepted an invitation to oversee the development and management of Second Mile, a proposed teen center for high schoolers in West Sac, and the news couldn't be more timely for a city that expects a sizable population boom in coming years.

"It's really a big need, especially if it's a center that would be open all the time," said Misty Drew, a student at River City High School.

Committed citizens and community leaders have been in dialogue with Campus Life for more than three months. Second Mile's executive committee made its formal petition to come under the Campus Life umbrella on June 23 and was approved within days.

Campus Life has run a successful teen center in Elk Grove for five years, and has also partnered with city and law enforcement officials in Carmichael to hatch the North Area Teen Center, which is scheduled to open this fall.

What's it all mean? To hear Second Mile's supporters, it means a significant hedge against drugs, gangs, crime and truancy. It means a sober alternative on weekends, mentoring and tutoring networks, and a safe afternoon hangout for high schoolers. It means a diversified destination for teens who don't have many to chose from in West Sac.

High schoolers certainly seem to recognize the value. In a survey administered in May, 45 percent of them said they would frequent a teen center on weekday afternoons or weekend evenings.

"I see this as an excellent opportunity for our teens to have a wholesome, enriching experience outside school," said Dr. Donna White, principal at River City High School and a member Sound Off!

'Sound Off!' is your local call-in opinion line. See details below for rules on participation. This week's comments:

(Regarding the "City Lights" publication): They advertise 9 p.m. fireworks for the ribbon cutting for the Palamidessi Bridge. That gives everyone the impression West Sacramento is open to fireworks being legal. It's not. If it is legal for the city, it should be legal for the rest of us. They should at least indicate they have a special permit, special permission, so the rest of us don't get the impression fireworks are legal and maybe get a ticket if we spark some off.

Now we know that while Old Sacramento has a view of a modern ziggurat (the new Money Store building) from its historic site on the river, our equally historic site will have (a view of) a parking lot, a block wall. Take a look at what Washington (part of Broderick in West Sac.) could have been.

No animals mistreated

Leslie Lamkin is a dear person. I'm sure. And I am saddened about her pain. She believes what she believes about the circus and its wonderful animals. Unfortunately nothing -- her misinformation or the true facts -- will change her mind. So, she will remain convinced that the animals are abused and she will continue to be saddened. It is unfortunate that she knows not of what she writes.

Judging from the attitude of the very few protestors at the 7:30 p.m. performance who attempted to block passage of families into the circus, no amount of viable positive information or evidence would be seen or heard by them as factual. That's their choice. Personally, I'm pretty happy about the fact that we all have a right to our own opinions; even when they're not backed by facts. It's just unfortunate that the truth does not always prevail.

The only thing that I can do here is tell you what I believe, based on my person experience with the circus, what I have been told by numerous others who also have had personal experiences with the circus and reports by City and County officials -- including veterinarians -- throughout the United States.

The Miller family has owned and operated the Carson & Barnes 5-Ring Circus 56 years, and have included animals from the very beginning; including dogs, ponies, horses, elephants, big cats and other exotic animals. It makes no sense whatsoever for the presenters to mistreat the living entities -- human and animal -- that support them. In fact the animals get a little more pampering than the humans, as evidenced by example shown the morning of the circus in West Sacramento when the water was issued. It went to the elephants first of all.

Also, if the folks at Carson & Barnes continually violated laws protecting circus animals, they would simply be out of business. The animals are on display -- under the nearly 24 hour each day and can and are seen nearly 24 hours a day either performing, lolling, eating or sleeping -- subject to public scrutiny at all times.

Incidentally, in Great Britain, a study was commissioned with the purpose in mind to discredit circuses in general. However, when the study was completed, it concluded the opposite. It found that circus animals in general were better cared for the lived longer than zoo animals. Even better, however, it was reported that they do better in general than animals in their own natural state.

The Carson & Barnes 5-Ring Circus has stood up to the many tests of time and continues to provide safe, exciting and humane family entertainment.

Leslie Lamkin is welcome to be ashamed all she wants. I, for one, however, am proud of our community for bringing such a wonderful and exciting world renowned show to West Sacramento. Too, I am grateful to have witnessed the happiness on so many faces as they watched the animals and their caretakers erect the big top in the morning and put on two very wonderful shows during the day.

There are so very many people to thank: the hosts, planners, Planning Commissioners, Economic Development Advisory Commissioners, the City Council, land owners, city staff, restaurants, workers who prepared the site and who cleaned up after words, waste management, businesses and individuals who purchased and donated tickets for our community's children, the VIPs, local television stations, weatherman Dewey Hopper, Sonic Cable Television and our newspapers, the West Sacramento News-Ledger and the West Sacramento Press, and many more local folks who understood the importance of bringing the circus to West Sacramento.

I am happy and proud to report that the people of West Sacramento and vicinity have spoken with their wallets and enjoyed the circus so much that the Carson & Barnes 5-Ring Circus has agreed to come back to our community in two years.

STEVE ROBERTS
Executive Director

Rebuttal to Frugoli

Vince. Vince. Vince!

Those of us who have been involved with protecting the interests of the business community and the rights of all the citizens of this community are well aware of the "behind the scenes, good 'ole boy system" of yore. We're all better off without it.

Your recent letter to the editor continues the myth but not the truth. The sad thing is that you know it, yet it makes no difference.

Self interest is the slayer of the truth. Your sword might be mighty. It might be sharp. It might even be deadly. But it misses the mark because most people involved in your personal issue already know that what you and your ghostwriter produce has no value because it isn't factual. This misinformation, provided in your last letter about the City and the Chamber, their contract and your personal property dilemma over the future well-being of our city does a disservice to the people you claim to represent.

I hope the Chamber or the City responds to your diatribe of self-serving misinformation. Probably, neither will because your claims are so absurd.

Letter from Marna

You've heard that there is fighting in the ranks of politicians lately, and that Clinton was smart enough to point it out. Talking about the disaster bill, now would be the time for politicians who say they want to fix the system and uncorrupt the process to act. Passing "218" shows how tired people are of our politicians.

Would it be too much to ask that they simplify the process and liberate the truth about each politician and party. If they put one thing in each bill only, making it mandatory for the spending to be a one-time event and no extra manipulations added during committee, you would know who really supports what, and you would know who spent the money. People would be able to see who really sells the taxpayers down the river and better choose who to give the boot.

That is what the new Gann and Jarvis initiatives will be focusing on. If politicians can only spend and finance specific items and not move the money around, you start to get a grip on things.

Naffta and GATT look after stockbrokers and corporate heads that save money but take employment from us and our US currency to do it but the up-date is saying its ok to do it. Interesting.

AB923 is still being talked about. It exterminates the Redevelopment Agency -- that thing that wastes your tax dollars while giving money to those who manipulate politicians and also eminent domains your property and has no ethics about it. The redevelopment agency seems to emulate Hitler-type programs that always sound so warm and fuzzy.

Senate Bill 324....Saraha Foster tells me that, inspite of what they say, sets the medical professionals and cronies up as "gods" of our lives. The bill says that if you question the advise of a "professional" you will be prosecuted.

Now, just how much power do you want over your life? If you think your relatives are above putting a word in an ear about your competence when you happen to have a little nest egg, you haven't been paying attention to the horror stories. Even in my own family, there is a drive to declare my aunt as needed a conservator, because someone wants what she has worked for and can't seem to wait. Sick, sick, sick, little people wanting what belongs to someone else. No, no, no, to the little bills like Senate 324 that put anyone above the law. I would like to see a law that prosecuted people who try to pass bills like these.

This is similar to the FPPC's little threat on the second page of their bulletin. They threaten anyone who questions a state, county or city official -- even if they are doing something wrong.

Anyone notice that stockbrokers and politicians are telling us how rosey the economy is. While union jobs seem to be paying less and anyone having worked for a company for eve ten years is being "phased out" or taking an early retirement. Cold reality never penetrates enough to overcome the warmth of complacency. Vets get less and the things they fought for don't seem to matter to the younger generation. What our grandparents used to do that made this country so good, must be alluding us...A parting thank you to my grandfather, who spent his life in a VA hospital due to conditions caused by war. He was a wonderful man. My father is a Korean War Veteran and I'm proud of him too. Happy Fourth of July.

The Sacramento River registered 4 feet 1 inch U. S. gauge at the S. P. bridge yesterday

The utility or inutility of weirs in the Sacramento River is being exemplified at this moment at the mouth of the American River where a great sand bar stops navigation, or in a few days will completely prevent any steamers from going up stream. The most northerly weir in the Sacramento River above Rocky Point is separated from the sandbank by only a few feet and the river current is only wide enough for a small steamer to get by. Besides the turn in the channel is so sharp that in a few days no steamer drawing more than three feet of water can pass this point. Two years ago when a protest was registered with Colonel Rand about the building of these weirs he wasn't at all modest about telling the Washington Improvement Club that their case was not to be considered, for it must be "the greatest good for the greatest number," meaning that if weirs were to be built in the river channel they would be built for the benefit of Sacramento, leaving Yolo County out in the cold. Evidently Colonel Rand forgot that the steamers plying on the river were mostly owned by Sacramento people.

EXTENSION OF JITNEY SERVICE TAKEN UP AGAIN

At the request of the Washington Improvement Club a committee, consisting of E. A. Palm and P. A. Fitzgerald, called on C. W. McKillup, Superintendent of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, last Tuesday, asking that the question of extension of jitney service to Washington and Riverbank be taken up.

Mr. McKillup assured the committee that he would take the matter up with the corporation, but personally he could extend no hope for the extension, because at this writing the jitney service in Sacramento is far from being satisfactory either in a financial way or as a substitute for street car service.

When West Sacramento townsite was opeend up this question was considered and a bonus was offered to make good any deficit that might occur through the service. The P. G. & E. could not see a chance to make a gain and hence the installation of the West Side Railroad, which still operates cars to West Sacramento headquarters.

Mr. McKillup assured the committee that he would be able to answer one way or the other before the next meeting of the club.

This question was brought up at the meeting of the Improvement Club on June 1st. One of those preesnt asked the Chairman "What can be done to start things going in Washington in the most lively way?" One lady replied that she thought if street car service was supplied, following the installation of a gas supply, the advancement would be well on its way in a substantial manner.

The next meeting of the club will likely be able to return some satisfactory answer on this question.

MAY CONSOLIDATE SCHOOLS.

The first step taken for the consolidation of River View school, four miles south of Washington, with the Washington school, were taken last Friday when the trustees of both schools asked County Superintendent of Schools Harriet Lee for petition blanks calling for a special election for the purpose of voting on the question of consolidation. These petitions must be signed by a majority of the heads of families and the blanks must be completed and the election held before July 1st.

PREPARING FOR CONCRETE ROAD ON LEVEE

The application of District No. 785 in Yolo County to raise and widen its levee along the Sacramento River, has been set for hearing on June 18th, by the State Reclamation Board. According to the estimate of Asa G. Proctor, engineer of the district, the improvements will cost about $20,000. A clam shell dredge will be employed to do the work.

POPULATION OF WASHINGTON ESTIMATED AT 1500

In an effort to arrive at the exact population of the town of Washington, the Independent wrote Congressman C. F. Curry on May 11th, asking that as soon as the Census Bureau could secure it the figure be sent to this paper.

In reply Congressman Curry wrote under date of June 2d.

House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C.
June 2, 1920.

P. A. Fitzgerald, Esq., The Independent, Broderick, Calif.

My Dear Mr. Fitzgerald:

When I received your favor of the 11th ult. in reference to the population of the town of Washington, Yolo County (Postoffice Broderick) I took the matter up with the Director of the Census.

It has been impossible to secure the 1920 census report of the population of Washington, Calif., as the town is unincorporated and the Bureau does not compile the population statistics of unincorporated towns. The Director of the Census made an effort to secure the information you wished for me, but has been unable to do so.

I am very sorry that my letter does not contain more favorable information. With best wishes, believe me.

Sincerely yours,
C. F. CURRY.

Judging from the fact that at this writing there is not a vacant house in Washington, Riverbank or West Sacramento, it is estimated that the population of those three is fully 1500 people.

Later on the exact figure may be procurred and as a request of this paper stands for an answer at the Census Bureau an answer may be expected soon.

In the first Supervisor District of Yolo County, that is the portion contiguous to Sacramento and immediately tributary thereto, the population is estimated at about 4500.

This population is composed mostly of home owners, farmers and a very prosperous class of people. These people do all their trading in Sacramento, going to Woodland, the county seat, only on rare occasions for legal business and for tax paying.

The business of this portion of Yolo County is transacted almost entirely in Sacramento.

It extends from Elk Horn to the southern extremity of the county and includes the rich district north of Washington, West Sacramento, the Lisbon District, the Holland Land Company, Clarksburg and a great stretch of very valuable land south of Clarksburg.

More families have been added every day to this district and a constant stream of trade is pouring into the capital city over the bridges that cross the river and the ferries that ply thereon.

TWO MORE STOCK INSPECTORS NAMED FOR YOLO COUNTY

The Department of Agriculture, Office of Cattle Protection, has appointed two additional inspectors to represent the Office of Cattle Protection in Yolo County, viz: L. J. Hoffman, Fifth and Beamer streets, Woodland, who is to take care of the inspections at Yolo, Woodland, Davis, Knights Landing and Merrits. E. B. Hart, Winters, is to take care of the inspections at Winters. Hoffman and Hart are succeeding L. W. Bryant, our former inspector at Yolo, who has resigned.

Cattle will not be accepted at any shipping point or by any common carrier unless a certificate of inspection, issued by the inspector is filed with the agent therefor at time of shipment. All cattle to be slaughtered must be inspected at the slaughterhouse by the inspector for marks and brands before the same can be slaughtered.

No person can engage in the slaughtering of cattle as a business before obtaining a license from the State and filing a bond in compliance with the law. Failure to do so renders the person so doing liable to fine and imprisonment and closes his slaughter house for a period of one year.

Bills of sale must be obtained when cattle are purchased and must be shown to the inspector. All cattlemen who intend to ship cattle and all slaughterers intending to slaughter cattle purchased by them must inform the inspector at least 24 hours before shipment or before cattle are slaughtered, by notifying the inspector nearest the shipping corral or slaughter house.

GORED TO DEATH BY VICIOUS BULL NEAR FREEPORT

John C. Yenger, a dairyman of Freeport, was gored to death early Wednesday by a bull. Yenger died before aid could reach him after the infuriated animal had pierced his abdomen.

The bull, known to be particularly dangerous, had been kept chained in a corral. At about 5 o'clock Wednesday morning Yenger, who has been a dairyman in the Freeport district for many years, discovered that the bull had broken loose, and gone to the pasture. He attempted to drive the animal back into the corral.

The bull attacked his owner and drove his horns into Yenger's body. Death came almost instantaneously. The body was taken charge of by Coroner John T. Skelton of Sacramento County.

Yenger leaves a widow and taree small children. He was 50 years old and a native of Iowa.

PEAR CROP ESTIMATED AT 1500 TONS.

WOODLAND, June 2.—The Yolo County pear crop for 1920 was estimated at 1500 tons for a minimum yield this morning by County Horticultural Commissioner Wm. Gould in his report to the California Pear Growers' Association.

The normal crop runs about 2500 tons, but considering climatic conditions, the yield is more than expected by the growers. The largest orchard is the Rose orchard near Sacramento, on this side of the river. Here the Bartlett crop will be almost up to normal, though the cost of maintaining this average will reduce the profit far below normal.

Using flyway to learn

From the Yolo Basin Foundation

The Yolo Bypass Wildlife area is located on a floodplain between West Sacramento and Davis.

The Discover the Flyway outreach program will offer two teacher workshops in August. The workshops, coordinated by the Yolo Basin Foundation in cooperation with the State Department of Fish and Game and the U.S. Army Corps on Engineers -- Bay Model, will bring elementary school teachers and their students to the newly created Yolo Bypass Wildlife Area for the first time.

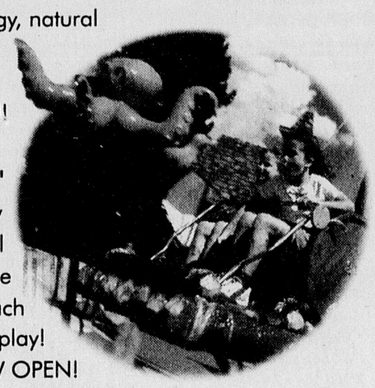

The 3,500 acre wetlands complex, located in the Yolo Bypass just south of I-80, is an important resource for the public and a great tool for teachers. "The Wildlife Area will open to the public for the first time in October, and we're eager to introduce schoolchildren to the unique lessons a wetland can provide," said Robin Kulakow, Executive Director of the Yolo Basin Foundation.

Discover the Flyway teacher workshops will be held on August 19 and 20. The workshop cost is a suggested donation of $10.00. Workshop enrollment includes membership in the Foundation. Interested teachers should call 758-1286.

SECOND MILE from p. 5

of Second Mile's executive committee.

Formulative blueprints call for a snack bar/lounge, basketball hoops, a computer lab, stereo system, pool tables and other offerings. Sports tournaments, out-of-town trips, camping and hiking getaways and movie nights are among the sketched activities, along with opportunities for music and drama. A network of counselors will be in place to help deal with the serious teen issues of drug dependency, pregnancy and depression.

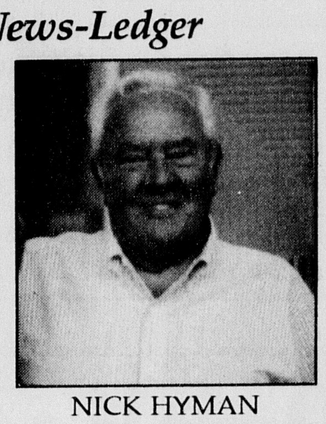

And what of Two Rivers, the city-sponsored teen program for high schoolers? Two Rivers was originally designed to be West Sac's high school teen center, but funding shortages have relegated the program to three Thursday evenings a month. There is no guarantee when, or if, sufficient funding will arrive to facilitate the program's expansion.

That's one reason why Don Schatzel, the city's director of parks and community services, continues to oversee Two Rivers but has also become active in carrying the Second Mile campaign. "City government learned a long time ago that we can't do everything ourselves," Schatzel said. "So collaborating with the community is fundamental to any success."

Second Mile is a privately-funded venture, so support from the community will be the lifeblood of the center. Fund-raising campaigns are in the works and will soon be landing on the porch of West Sac businesses and homes. Second Mile's executive committee is considering potential sites for the center, preferably in or near "central" West Sac and outside a residential neighborhood (so that the center may stay open past 10 p.m. on weekends).

For more information, stop by the Second Mile booth at tonight's bridge-opening ceremonies to pick up a brochure and a mini-American flag for waving. You may also call Don Bosley at 375-1153; or visit Second Mile's web site at www.fal.net/secondmile; or write the Second Mile folks at P.O. Box 1323, W. Sacramento CA 95691-1323.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF IRVING TEPPER
CASE NUMBER: P-97-000143

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Irving Tepper:

A PETITION has been filed by DOUGLAS A. KAPLAN, PUBLIC ADMINISTRATOR in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

THE PETITION requests that Douglas A. Kaplan, Public Administrator be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on July 23, 1997 at 8:30 a.m. in Dept. 7, Room 116, located at 725 Court Street, Courthouse, Woodland, CA.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Attorney for petitioner: /s/Adriana

"We not only receive phone tips to the numbers printed in the newspaper, but we also get confidential tips at (the parole office in Woodland) and I even got one tip at home. We act on those as expediently as possible. It's really working well."

Potnick and his colleagues are in charge of monitoring parolees in the area, and when one of them fails to meet the conditions of parole, they are expected to bring him or her in. Those chosen for publication in the "Most Wanted" section are being sought for violations serious enough to warrant a trip back to prison, he added.

A News-Ledger reporter got a first-hand look at how the "Most Wanted" feature works on the very first day the feature was published in the newspaper. Pulling into a local gas station on that day in April, he had to hit the brakes to avoid hitting a man who stepped in front of the car -- and was surprised to recognize the man's face as one of those printed in that day's News-Ledger.

The man disappeared near a pair of nearby motels. After police were notified, they visited the hotels -- just missing the suspect, who had left minutes earlier and is believed to be in Sacramento.

Nevertheless, the suspect's female roommate at the motel was found to be wanted, so she was arrested.

Potnick said that besides helping to bring in parole violators, the "Most Wanted" feature has had a deterrent effect among the parolees registered to his office.

"The biggest buzz is happening in our office, with the parolees talking about the 'Most Wanted' list and them saying they don't want to be published in the newspaper. We tell them if they violate parole, and they meet the conditions, their picture will indeed be in the newspaper."

Potnick encouraged the public to continue looking at the pictures in the "West Sac's Most Wanted" feature and to keep calling in the tips.

"We do respond to all the information we get on these," he said.

SPORTS from p. 3

Friday, July 11 at the Memorial Auditorium. Diego Corrales (15-0, 13 KOs) will defend his IBA Continental 130 pounds title against Manny Castillo (15-7, 8 KOs). Mexico's Yori Boy Campas will tangle with Verdell Smith in a ten round bout that will be televised live on the Spanish network Telemundo. This should be a great Friday night of boxing with 42 rounds scheduled.

Now back to baseball!

The Giants (47-34) remain in first place in the West Division as the baseball season moves closer to the halfway point and the All Star Break on July 8. This year's All Star game will be played next Tuesday night at Jacombs Field in Cleveland. The A's (34-49) made a trade last week, sending one of their best hitters Geronimo Berroa to the Baltimore Orioles for two minor league pitchers. Trade rumors still involve Mark McGwire, who wants a new $10 million a year contract. The A's total team salary for this year is around $21.5 million. See ya, Mark!

The Sacramento Kings selected 11th in this year's NBA draft, and chose San Jose State forward Olivier Saint-Jean. The 6' 6" forward was 11th in the nation in scoring with a 23.4 point average. The Kings will need another shooter if the rumors continue that the Kings are about to trade All Star Mitch Richmond. Richmond has demanded a trade and the Kings have been talking to a couple of teams. The Sonics are willing to part with Shawn Kemp and Hersey Hawkins for Mitch and Brian Grant. But Grant is a free agent and cannot be traded unless he signs a new contract with the Kings.

Another rumor has Mitch and Olyden Polynice going to the Lakers for point guard Nick Van Exel, forward Eddie Jones and center Elden Campbell.

See ya next week!

a state-run telephone line that, for a $10 fee, would tell you if a certain person was a registered sex offender.

"Megan's Law" and the resulting list were named after a seven year old from New Jersey was raped and murdered by a sex offender living across the street from her house. Megan's family did not know the man's past. "Megan's Law" relaxed confidentiality laws surrounding the whereabouts of these past offenders.

Activists used the incident to promote the idea that residents have the right to know if dangerous people are living in their neighborhoods. California has almost 63,000 registered sex offenders.
